The Burning of the Slocum.

Out upon the blue waters of Long Island Sound, Like a gem of the white-caps, the Slocum was bound, Where whispering breezes chase wavelet and spray, So stately and grand on one bright summer day.

There was music which wafted its soft mystic strains O'er the cabin and deck with enchanting refrain: The laugh and the romp and the boat's heaving bound, Danced o'er the calm waters of Long Island Sound.

Amidst life's dearest pleasures, on land or on sea, All alone, or with loved ones, some evil may be: While hearts, light and mirthful, did pleasure inspire, Rang out o'er the waters, "The boat is on fire!"

For an instant the throng seemed as palsied with fear; Then confusion did reign from the fore to the rear! All on that lone vessel were frenzied with fright; The uproar did sound like a storm in the night!

In a moment the craft was one scene of despair! And the shrieks of the whistles and screams rent the air! "O, the boat is on fire! O God! save my child!" The wail of fond mothers, now frantic and wild.

Out upon the doomed watchers flashed the fire's mad breath, And the muzzling breezes fanned flames hot with death! Deep groans from the fated mass 'palled listening ear, The pleading for help, when no rescue was near.

Lurid flames wrapt the bodies of all in their sweep, While hundreds sought death in the abyss of the deep! Dense smoke from the burning boat spread wide and high, And veiled the dread scene from the face of the sky!

O the sights of this horror can ne'er be described. The heart throbs with pity for the hundreds that died. We weep with their loved ones in anguish and pain, And pray that the like may ne'er happen again.

I. WILL JACKSON.

Roosevelt Weak in New York.

The starting point of Theodore Roosevelt's career as President was his election as Governor in 1898. If it had not been for that event he would not have been thought of for Vice-President.

In further confirmation of what the World has said as to Mr. Roosevelt's weakness in his own State, it is instructive to look at the Republican pluriplities in the years immediately preceding and following his election as Governor:

1894—Morton for Governor, 150,308.

1895—Secretary of State, 90,246.

1896—McKinley for President, 268,468.

1898—Roosevelt for Governor, 17,786.

1900—Odell for Governor, 111,126.

The average Republican plurality in these five elections was nearly 130,000. Mr. Roosevelt's plurality was less than 18,000, though he ran in the year of the Spanish war with the story of his undoubted gallantry in Cuba fresh in the public mind. Yet, though the people admired his courage, they did not like his temperament nor trust his discretion in an executive office. The voters in this city, in particular, had not forgotten his crusade as police commissioner against the personal rights and liberty of citizens and his oppressive and discriminating enforcement of the Sunday and excise laws.

So unpopular was Mr. Roosevelt that he would have been defeated but for "Boss" Crocker's stupid blunder in refusing a re-nomination to Judge Daly on the ground that the judge "had not given Tammany proper consideration." Outraged by this brutal edict of the boss, the most eminent Democratic lawyers in the city organized and vigorously conducted a campaign for a free and independent judiciary. Hundreds of independent voters, disgusted with the domination of Crocker, voted the whole Republican ticket. And yet with all this adventitious aid, Mr. Roosevelt's plurality was so small that a change of fewer than 9000 votes would have defeated him.

That Mr. Roosevelt knew and was honest enough to acknowledge the cause of his election was proved by the statement which he gave out after learning the result. "I shall strive to administer the office of Governor in the interests of the whole people. It is by so doing that I can best show my appreciation of the support given me by independents and Democrats, who have themselves put the welfare of the State in my hands; first, by declining to follow their leaders, who in this crisis have ranged themselves outright on the side of the forces of dishonesty, or else supported them in effect by standing aside from the real contest."

Mr. Platt, in an interview, made the same admission, saying: "The Democratic mistake of putting itself in an attitude of opposition to the judiciary of the State of course helped Col. Roosevelt."

No such condition of affairs exists to help Mr. Roosevelt now. Judge Parker is himself a splendid representative of an upright, able and independent judiciary. Democrats are united upon him. The independent voters respect and trust him. He will carry New York against the candidate who has always proved to be weak with the voters, whenever the test has been made in an election.—New York World.

Watch for a Chill.

However slight at this time of year and in this climate, it is the forerunner of malaria. A disposition to yawn, and an all tired out feeling even comes before the chill. Herbine, by its prompt stimulative action on the liver, drives the malarial germs out of the system, purifies the blood, tones up the system and restores health. 50c at Arcadia Valley Drug Co.

The Lying Republic.

During the State convention at Jefferson City the past week the unreliability of the metropolitan press of Missouri was forcibly emphasized in connection with the investigation of the alleged riots that occurred at the St. Louis county primaries. A St. Louis paper published a story in its report of the incident that one of its artists assigned to that job had been assaulted, his camera smashed and his appearance perceptibly damaged. The management of the paper in question offered a hundred dollars reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons guilty of this outrage, but the prize failed to unearth, discover, entrap or expose the murderous assailants. And the failure was inevitable, for the reason that the artist of the paper in question had not been assaulted at Clayton, his camera had not been smashed, nor had any untoward fate of any kind befallen him. At any rate, the special political writer of that paper is reported to have made a statement to that effect in Jefferson City during the past week.—Joplin Globe.

Contracted Chronic Diarrhoea While in the Philippines.

"While with the U. S. Army in the Philippines, I contracted chronic diarrhoea. I suffered severely from this terrible disease for over three years and tried the prescriptions of numerous physicians, but found nothing that did me any good until I tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, two small bottles of which entirely cured me and I have since had no return of the disease."—HERMAN STEIN, 212 N. Some Things Seen at the Fair.

Last Saturday was Transportation Day at the Fair. It was estimated that there were more than 137,167 in attendance. Crowds commenced to come early, and up until 1 o'clock, when the gates were closing hundreds from the downtown districts. Again in the evening thousands were out to "Hike the Pike." The very fact that coupons were offered with every ticket purchased, made hundreds of people who had season tickets wish they were not, so they might have a chance for some of the prizes offered. Crowds surged up and down the Pike holding high carnival. Young boys and girls, and older ones, had whisk brooms and tiny feather dusters, or great long tickly topped straws, and dusted or tickled your face, as they fancied. Some had these long curled up things that you blow and they shoot with an ugly swish, in front of your eyes. College boys would come dancing up beside you and half a dozen or so would join hands and jump round and round, until they had your party of four or six, all squeezed up into space enough for only one. Then with a jolly laugh, they were off like a flash, sharing the fun with another crowd.

Out in front of the Louisiana monument a Mask Parade was held in the evening, and prizes offered for the best costumes. Gay butterflies and charming creatures in filmy, gauzy apparel joined hands with Indians bedaubed with war paint, and old "St. Nick," as is his wont, gave each a merry round. This soon paled in the light of "Mysterious Asia," where the tum-tum music and the "barker" used their best efforts to get the crowd.

The most interesting thing as we see it on the inside of Asia, is the camels and the people who ride them. You can ride the elephant, if you like, but it is not half the fun. When the camel unfolds and gives you three or four tosses, and trots off with a gait that is warranted to cure indigestion and liver trouble, you are possessed with a fit of giggles or else you keep telling the keeper to make him go faster. It is best to select a camel that goes down in three folds, for then you get the full benefit of the ride. We wonder if the Editor has had a ride on Bedelia, the one they told us was the largest of them all. Some of the fellows who keep the little shops along the path of the elephant and camels, have learned to say, "Hello, Miz-zure," and they try their best to get you to stop and buy something.

The best concert of the season was held in Festival Hall a few evenings since. Massed bands consisting of Boston Band, 60 performers; Fanciulli's Band, 50 performers and Well's Band, (St. Louis) 40 performers, in conjunction with the great organ, at which a St. Louis man presided, rendered a very classical program. Each band performed four numbers under its own leader in succession, and this was followed by the massed bands, led alternately by the different conductors. Echoes from the Metropolitan Opera House, (Tobani) containing excerpts from "Queen of Sheba," "Tannhauser," "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Second Hungarian Rhapsody," etc., seemed to delight the audience. One of Fanciulli's own compositions, "Patrol 'The Glorious South'" brought forth enthusiastic applause. Men and women stood and cheered, waving handkerchiefs and flags. This reached the patriotic heart-throbs of the listeners. "The Lost Chord" and "The Star Spangled Banner" brought forth prolonged and enthusiastic cheers. The organ occupies the entire west end of the building. It is of white and gold, the yellow pipes glistening with stars. A canopy bedecked with stars. The large echo organ is out in a hall to the north of the large hall. The immense dome of Festival Hall, which is larger than that of the Capitol, in fact, the largest in the world, is illumined by rows of electric lights, following the arched outline. Four large flags are suspended high, two of the World's Fair, and two of our National Colors.

After the concert was over, many people went up on the stage to get a closer view of the organ. One lady in describing her first impression of it said, "If you can imagine heavy thunder transformed into the sweetest, most harmonious music, that is the way it appeals to me." But you get no conception of it until you have heard and seen it, and then you have a part in it.

We notice the Editor of the REGISTER speaks of the Missouri exhibit at the agricultural building. He knows where to find the best of the Fair; and I want to whisper that it will do all Iron county inhabitants good to go in to the Missouri Building, and see the files of the IRON COUNTY REGISTER. It is well worth your while. We may have already told you that we hunted them up the first thing when we visited our state building.

When Visiting the World's Fair Ride on the Ferris Wheel.

The great Expositions held during the last fifteen years have produced two marvelous examples of engineering and constructive ability. One of these, the Eiffel Tower, was designed and built by a Frenchman at Paris for the Exposition of 1889; the other, the Ferris Wheel, was designed and built by the late Geo. W. G. Ferris for the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, in 1893.

Paris again held a great Exposition in 1900 but failed to produce any feature to take the place of the Eiffel Tower. In America, St. Louis, in 1904, planned and produced the greatest Exposition the world has ever seen. Scores of attempts were made to invent something more wonderful and more attractive than the Ferris Wheel, but as Paris failed to outdo her own Eiffel Tower, so did St. Louis fail to equal the far-famed Ferris Wheel of the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893. Arrangements were accordingly made to bring the Ferris Wheel to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and it was given a location near
